Working Groups: Keeping Kolot Operating

With its small staff, Kolot Chayeinu is self-managed. To keep ourselves operating, we have divided the key organizational tasks into working groups. Getting involved doesn't mean that you are consigned to "committee life." You can start small, and this work presents an opportunity to contribute a skill, grapple with our key issues, meet other members, and have some fun, too. Indicate your interest, below. A board member or staff person will contact you.

This year I am interested in:

- Helping plan for and secure Kolot's future by contributing my skills and expertise to:
 - Financial Planning working group.
 - Capacity Management/Personnel working group
 - Communications working group
- Thinking of possible, unique new spaces through the Olive Tree working group.
- Working with new members and making sure that all members feel welcome through the Kehila v'Chevra (community and membership) working group.
- Raising funds for Kolot through the Terumah (fundraising) working group. (Note: Experienced fundraisers and total novices willing to work are highly desired.)
- Supporting members of the congregation at times of sickness, need, loss and joy through the working group G'milut Chasadim (acts of loving kindness).
- Creating social justice activities through the Etz-Kehillah (social justice) working group.
- Taking part in one of the administrative jobs that holds the community together - for instance, mailings, e-mails, designing flyers and other forms of communication, and helping with thank you notes.
